

Man wants but little here below,
Nor wants that little long.
The very far from being so,
Though 'tis so in the song.
Man's wants are many, and, it told,
Would muster many a score.
And were each wish a mint of gold,
He still would long for more.

Walpole Not to Blame.

The same fate that befell the late Good Deacon Richard Smith, of the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette, seems to have overtaken friend Frank Walpole, of the Tampa Herald. The Deacon was a good man but was surrounded by very wicked partners and unfortunately it was they who controlled the policy of the paper to which the good Deacon's name was attached. In the career of Frank Walpole history seems to be repeating itself. Frank is innocence itself. He is from the purity precincts of rural Maunabo and was unexpectedly and unsuspectingly thrust upon a great city wholly unprepared for its saturnalia of duplicity in whose vortex he seems to have been caught by being placed in charge of a local partisan paper. Don't blame Frank. Blame the wicked partners.

Blazing the Road to Harmony and Success.

Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier Journal, tells how democratic success can be achieved in the following: "The democratic party must turn its back upon the past and its face to the future. It must cry truth to factionism. It must have done with hair-splitting and hair-pulling. It must disregard its fine-spun theories and its newly aroused antagonisms. Send both the Bryans and the Cleveland to the rear—and having raised up a leader out of the very womb of destiny, who will be as Tilden, at once a man and an issue, it will go on its way, conquering and to conquer."

We Surrender Our Claims to the Younger and Handsomer Man.

Editors Frank Harris of the Ocala Banner, and Stovall of the Tampa Tribune, are continually throwing bouquets at each other. Editor Harris is trying to make a governor of Editor Stovall, and vice versa. No doubt it is pleasant pastime, and besides the people may some of these days take them seriously and make both of them governors. That would not be a bad thing for them to do either, for both of them are good timber.—Tallahasseean.

Raised From the Dead.

C. W. Landis, porter for the Oriental hotel, Chanute, Kan., says: "I know what it was to suffer with neuralgia and I got a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment and I was raised from the dead." I tried to get some more before I had disposed of my bottle, I was cured entirely. I am telling the truth." 25c, 50c and $1.00 at the Anti-Monopoly Drug Store.

We Admire a Good Man.

Brother Stovall of the Tampa Tribune will show no adverse reference to the Ocala Banner without rushing to its defense and repelling all attacks against it from whatever quarter. Has he and Editor Frank Harris formed an alliance offensive and defensive?—Pensacola Press.

The idea enforced by the New York Tribune that "the leaders in the south must be left to solve the problem of education in their own way" and that they "best understand the conditions" is encouraging in more ways than one. It indicates that there has at length grown up between the north and the south the spirit of reciprocal confidence that many of us have been praying for during more than thirty years. Who knows but that the little red school house may after all be the means of re-uniting all sections of the Union as they have never before been joined together?—New Orleans Times Democrat.

The primary system has come to stay. It has given abundant success in Georgia. It worked like a charm in Alabama—its first trial, and is destined to become very popular in that state. The system is truly and genuinely democratic. It places in the hands of every man the right to say who shall become the public servants of the state. And as long as our form of government is to endure this right should be accorded to every citizen.
